Cute, quaint story perfect for kids

Summary: This treasured classic is told through 4 year old Laura's eyes, and is the story of Laura Ingalls Wilder. Mary and Laura live in the big woods with Ma, Pa, and Baby Cary. Life in the Little House can be fun, exciting and adventurous. Plot: There really isn't a true plot to this story. The main point is character building. The family elements are extremely strong and that was a great element in the story. Characters: Laura is a 4 year old, but it is fun to see things through her eyes. Mary, her older sister, is like Laura in ways, and some ways not. I found all the characters in this story enjoyable. Overall: This was an incredibly cute story. I'm so glad I read this. I cannot wait to read Farmer Boy. Recommendations: I think this is perfect for 3rd grade, but as a 13 year old, I still immensely enjoyed this book. There isn't any violence or content so it's perfectly family friendly, as most people know.

OWN REVIEW

Little house in the big woods everything was very good in the novel. If people had not read the book I really suggest the book. An outstanding book for beginner readers. You will enjoy Little House in the Big Woods. It uses simple words but is still a great story.

In this novel we discuss the one full year experience as homesteaders through the eyes of 5 years Laura.

The character Pa I like most. He is a very hardworking man.

One time the book made me uncomfortable was in the "Summertime" chapter.

When Laura slapped Mary's face. Just a hair color. Laura had a brown hair color and Mary had a golden hair color. Laura doesn't like the brown hair color. In this novel Mary is bigger than Laura so that was a very wrong scene.

- She did not mention in this review when Laura slapped Mary. She must have told about this because this is a matter of culture and ethics.
